ITN Description and Specifications

In 2006, the University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (UF/IFAS) implemented a Citrus Fast Track Release Option in its cultivar release policy to rapidly provide new citrus selections developed by UF/IFAS faculty plant breeders to the citrus industry for experimental evaluation and potential commercialization following grower trials and assessment of performance. Under this policy, limited and incomplete trial evaluation information is accepted by UF/IFAS in order to more rapidly facilitate the experimental trial of these selections by industry.

FFSP is seeking an exclusive partner (Research Cooperator) to facilitate the experimental (non-commercial) trial of the four (4) selections in this ITN to better determine their suitability and adaptation. In return for coordinating and participating in the trials in conjunction with UF/IFAS and FFSP, the Research Cooperator will be provided with a first option to negotiate reasonable terms for an exclusive license with an obligation to sublicense any or all of the four (4) selections.

A United States plant patent application has been filed on the '7-6-27' mandarin selection. Plant patents and other applicable intellectual property protection will be sought on the additional selections in this ITN which warrant commercialization pending their performance in non-commercial experimental trials. The evaluation and trial of the four (4) selections in this ITN is not an offer of sale of the plant material, and the Research Cooperator is required to preserve patentability and other intellectual property protection throughout the experimental trial period. To that end, the Research Cooperator must maintain the confidentiality of the selections and prohibit any sales of fruit or plants other than for confidential experimental purposes. Decisions relative to the timing of commercialization are to be made by mutual consent of FFSP and the Research Cooperator. FFSP retains the right to make all determinations relative to the timing and substance of intellectual property protection with reasonable input by and at the expense of the Research Cooperator.

CULTIVAR DESCRIPTIONS

‘7-6-27’ Mandarin Cultivar (U.S. Patent Pending)

‘7-6-27’ is a new and distinct mandarin hybrid cultivar that is easy to peel, completely seedless, and early maturing. ‘7-6-27’ originated from a controlled cross made in 2005. The original seedling tree was planted in 2007, and was selected in autumn 2013 due to its distinctive fruit characteristics and overall tree performance in a block with consistently high disease pressure.

Trees of ‘7-6-27’ are vigorous yet compact when grown on their own root system. Although ‘7-6-27’ is not resistant to Huanglongbing (HLB, or citrus greening), it has shown high levels of tolerance to the disease; symptomatic leaves are rarely seen on the seedling tree, and the causal agent for HLB, Candidatus Liberibacter asiaticus, has not yet been detected using the most sensitive qPCR detection methodology. In addition, citrus canker and Alternaria brown spot, two common citrus diseases in Florida, have not been observed on either foliage or fruit of ‘7-6-27’ in over 2.5 years of observation.

Trees of ‘7-6-27’ produce small-to-medium sized fruits that typically mature in mid-October to early-November. The fruits are very easy to peel and possess good segment integrity. Fruit of ‘7-6-27’ are deeply orange colored, both inside and out. Fruit of ‘7-6-27’ have excellent flavor, and reach a ratio of 14.32 by mid-to-late October in Lake Alfred, Florida (Brix—11.6, Acid—0.81). Although fruit of ‘7-6-27’ are completely seedless, they do contain small, inconspicuous seed traces. Fruit of ‘7-6-27’ has been highly rated by panels in several key characteristics, including internal color, external color, flavor, ease of peel removal, segment structure, and “mess factor”.

‘7-6-27’ was approved for release under the UF/IFAS Citrus Fast Track Release Option. It has not been extensively evaluated for yield, adaptation to different rootstocks, or post-harvest quality and performance of the fruit.

The AURORA™ Series

The AURORA™ series consists of three new and distinct mandarin selections which are characterized by their seedless, easy peeling fruit. The AURORA™ series was developed by the UF/IFAS citrus breeding program located in Gainesville, Florida, which has focused on creating new varieties that are completely seedless, mess-free, early maturing, and cold tolerant. Selections in the AURORA™ series have survived freezes of 18° F without any damage to small branches or leaves. Selections in this series are expected to produce quality mandarin-type fruit in climates similar to that of North Central Florida, although the selections should also be evaluated for their performance in other citrus producing regions in Florida. Selections in the AURORA™ series have lower Brix, but the fruit is also low-acid, resulting in a mild, balanced flavor. Currently, the AURORA™ series consists of the following selections:

‘UFGlow’

- Fruit Maturity Date: Mid-October - Mid-November (Gainesville, FL)
- Average Fruit Weight: 120g
- Tree Vigor: Moderately Vigorous
- Fruit Form: slightly squat
- Fertility: Self-fertile

‘UFSunrise’

- Fruit Maturity Date: Mid-November - Mid-December (Gainesville, FL)
- Average Fruit Weight: 104g
- Tree Vigor: Moderately Vigorous
- Fruit Form: Necked, with some fruit tending toward obovoid
- Fertility: Self-fertile

‘UFDawn’

- Fruit Maturity Date: Early-December - Mid-December (Gainesville, FL)
- Average Fruit Weight: 110g
- Tree Vigor: Moderately Vigorous
- Fruit Form: sheep nosed at the stem end, and some fruit are necked
- Fertility: Self-fertile

These 3 selections were approved for release under the UF/IFAS Citrus Fast Track Release Option. These three selections tend to plug, and as such must be clipped when harvested.

What is an ITN?

Newly developed cultivars, experimental lines, and plant germplasm are routinely approved for release through UF's Florida Agricultural Experiment Station (FAES). Florida Foundation Seed Producers, Inc. (FFSP), a non-profit corporation and direct support organization of the University of Florida, is continuously seeking strategic production and marketing companies in the trial and commercialization of a diverse portfolio of newly developed plant cultivars. For certain crops, several companies may express interest in an opportunity for an exclusive license for an improved plant cultivar. The Invitation to Negotiate (ITN), implemented in 2006, is a process which enables FFSP to fairly and objectively evaluate all proposals and comments to effectively identify superior companies to deliver new cultivars to the public. In return, licensed companies provide royalties back to FFSP for reinvestment in the breeding and development of new, improved cultivars at the FAES.

The ITN process encourages an open engagement of all interested companies and stakeholders. Companies submitting proposals and/or comments to an ITN will be evaluated consistently and fairly by a review committee comprised of staff members of FFSP and expert faculty advisors from FAES.

FFSP strives to secure the partner/partners that best meet the needs of the State of Florida and its people, UF, and the FAES breeding program. Responders to the ITN will be evaluated using a consistent methodology, allowing review committee members to weigh core elements and objectively evaluate multiple proposals. The ITN specifications objectively guide critical responses in a proposal and are designed to explore the project's scope for a sustainable model, consistent with the necessity to deliver FAES plant breeding products and technology to the public. The ITN requires interested companies to describe their prior experience and current business model. Companies are asked to describe a plan of action concerning the new trial or commercialization opportunity. The ITN also requests details of marketing and production plans which will successfully deliver a sound commercial operation and ensure that sustaining royalties are returned to support the FAES breeding program. Initiation of an ITN and the participation by a company in an ITN process does not mean an exclusive agreement or exclusive agreements will be eventually awarded; only that responsive companies will receive consideration and a fair evaluation of proposals and comments submitted.

At the conclusion of the ITN process, it is everyone's hope that most details can be mutually agreed upon, resulting in an award of a license to a qualified and successful partner.

Please refer to the terms and conditions of this ITN for specific terms and instructions.
